Long Description

Lor E. Lynn, a lover of travel, music, and community, has completed her new book "Raven's Choice": a delightful and thrilling story of romance and a black stallion with a mind all his own.

Published by New York City-based Page Publishing, Lor E. Lynn's elegant tale begins with James Stuart Donovan Hastings, Earl of Billingswood, who has had one headache after another. First his home is in disrepair, his nephew is too young for his own good, his best friend thinks he's gone round the bend, and now someone just tried to kill him. If it wasn't for the angel with strawberry blonde hair and amethyst eyes, he might well be dead. Blasted horse, thinks he knows more than the master!

Sweet Annabelle has been in hiding from both her brother and the man he was forced into choosing as her fiancé. It was going so well until she happened upon a rider-less black stallion. It was love at first sight for both Annabelle and the magnificent beast, but falling in love with his master was an entirely different matter. Now she's trying to let them both go and escape those who would break her spirit.

Now James must race to save the woman he has come to love from an overprotective brother, the reprobate knight, and his own vengeful past lover. All this to find the right time to tell her of his true feelings, and to make her his bride.

Readers who wish to experience this gorgeous work can purchase "Raven's Choice" at bookstores everywhere, or online at the Apple iTunes store, Amazon, Google Play or Barnes and Noble.
